The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, January 1. 1707.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated January 4.

Leipſich, December 24.

ALL King Auguſtus's Court, which he left behind him in Poland, are on the March to return into this Electorate, with the Life-Guards and all the other Saxon Troops, conſiſting of 14 Regiments. In the mean time the King cauſes a great Number of Men to be rais'd in this Country for recruiting his Army: And 'tis talk'd King Auguſtus deſigns likewiſe to cauſe new Regiments to be levied. General Spar, a Swede, who is in the Service of France, arriv'd here this Week from Paris, and 'tis ſaid has brought Letters from the King of France for the King of Sweden and King Staniſlaus.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated January 4.

Dreſden, December 24. King Auguſtus having taken his Leave of the King of Sweden at Alt-Ranſtad, went to Leipſich the 19th Inſtant; where no forreign Miniſter has yet had Audience of him. The King of Sweden ſhewing an Unwillingneſs to come hither, 'tis thought King Auguſtus will ſtay ſome time for him at Leipſick, and moſt of his Majeſty's Servants and Guards are ſent for thither from hence. Laſt Wednesday the Swediſh General Meyerfeld came hither to fetch the Princes Sobieski; and Yeſterday they both ſet out from hence to go to the King of Sweden's Quarter: They were met at Deitzwald by Prince Alexander their Brother, and they embrac'd each other with great Affection and Tenderneſs: Thence they went firſt to King Staniſlaus's Quarter, and after a ſhort ſtay there, to the King of Sweden's.

Berlin, Dec. 28. A Report is ſpread, that the Poliſh Ambaſſador reſiding here receiv'd Advice Yeſterday by an Expreſs, that the Czar of Muſcovy has renew'd his Alliance with the Republick of Poland, made a new Alliance with the Ottoman Porte, and has adviſ'd the ſaid Republick to make a new Election of a King. They write from Saxony, that the Contributions are ſtill exacted there with great Rigour, that the Swedes are not ſo numerous in that Country as has been reported, but that they make Demands of Quarters and Subſiſtance as if they were 60000 Men.

Hambourg, December 28. 'Tis adviſ'd from Saxony, that the King of Sweden has return'd King Auguſtus's Viſit; and that ſeveral Miniſters, and even King Auguſtus himſelf make great Interceſſion for General Patkul, but cannot prevail with the King of Sweden to pardon him. The Swedes raiſe many Men here, in the Territory of Bremen, in Pomerania, and in Sweden, for making up (as is ſaid) 8 or 10 new Regiments: Levies are made alſo for King Auguſtus in Saxony and elſewhere.

Amſterdam, Jan. 4. 'Two Days after the States 'had caus'd their Deputies to make the Remon'ſtrance (mention'd in my former) to the Miniſters 'reſiding at the Hague on the Part of the ſeveral 'Princes of Germany, their Deputies had a Confe'rence with the Imperial Envoy as Miniſter of King 'Charles of Spain, and thoſe of England, Portugal, 'and Savoy: There was no Occaſion to make the 'like Remonſtrance to thoſe Miniſters, becauſe 'with Reſpect to King Charles's Miniſter it would 'have been uſeleſs; and as for England and the 'Duke of Savoy, they had acquitted themſelves 'too well the paſt Campaign to merit any thing but 'Praiſe: Nor was it thought proper to give any 'Uneaſineſs to the Envoy of Portugal, becauſe he 'appear'd full of Trouble for the Death of the 'King his Maſter; and beſides if the Court of Portugal be to be complain'd of for not acting with 'all the Vigour that might be wiſh'd, that Court 'complain on their ſide, that the Subſidies and other 'Aſſiſtance promis'd them have not been furniſh'd altogether ſo regularly as they hop'd. So the Deputies only acquainted theſe Miniſters, with what 'had paſs'd between them and the Miniſters of the 'Empire, and deſired of them that what had been 'contributed hitherto by their reſpective Principals, 'to the Advancement of the Common Cauſe, might 'be continued. The Miniſter of Savoy repreſented, 'that only two things were requiſite, to enable the 'Duke his Maſter to purſue and improve the Advantages he had already gain'd, one was, To let 'the Troops now in Italy continue with him, the 'other was, To recruit them in good Time: On 'which two Conditions he would engage his Word 'on the Part of his Royal Highneſs, that he would 'not only maintain the Advantages he had gain'd 'in Italy, but even penetrate into the Heart of 'France. Theſe generous Expreſſions were very 'well taken by the Company. Which he perceiving, and being inform'd a Secretary ſent on the 'Part of King Charles, was gone over to England, 'to ſollicit the tranſporting of ſome Troops from 'Italy to Spain, he addreſs'd himſelf to the Imperial 'Miniſter, and told him he knew of that Deſign, but 'that it would not be amiſs to compare the Raiſing 'of the Ssege of Turin to that of Barcelona, 'that Care ought to be taken not to repeat the ſame 'Fault that was committed after the Retreat of the 'Duke of Anjou's ſhatter'd Army into Rouſſillon, 'which Army had time given them to march about 'by Navarre and to repoſſeſs themſelves even of the 'Capital of Caſtile: That the Duke of Orleans 'after his Defeat before Turin, retreated likewiſe 'over the Alps into Dauphine, and that the Troops 'the Duke of Savoy has ought not to be diminiſh'd, 'but rather augmented, not only that his Royal 'Highneſs might be able to keep the Enemy on 'this ſide of the Mountains, but to follow them 'into their own Country: That his Royal Highneſs 'had concerted the future Operations with the 'Duke of Marlborough, and that he hop'd my 'Lord Duke would not alter the Meaſures agreed. 'Within a Day or two, the chief Deputy of the 'Province of Zealand, preſented to the States General, at the Hague, a Reſolution taken by the 'States of that Province, relating to the Conteſt 'that is between their Province and this of Holland, 'occaſion'd by the Privateers of Zealand ſeizing 'Ships belonging to this City and Rotterdam in their 'Voyage home from France laden with Brandy 'and condemning them as lawful Prizes. 'Tis 'neceſſary to obſerve, that upon the Remonſtrances 'made to the States General by the States of the 'Province of Holland, their High Mightineſſes did 'in October paſt enjoyn the ſaid Capers, to reſtore 'ſuch Ships and their Lading within 3 Weeks, 'threatning in Caſe of Refuſal to grant them no more Commiſſions for privateering, and to deprive them of the Reward promis'd by the State for the taking of the Enemy's Ships or others laden with Contraband Goods. The States of Zealand had already anſwer'd by a long printed Diſcourſe, that what all the Provinces in the Union had agreed on by unanimous Conſent, could not be revok'd by any particular Province; and on that Foundation maintain'd, that Brandy being under a general Prohibition during the War, what the ſaid Privateers had taken was therefore by right confiſcable: And the Reſolution they have now made, after repeating thoſe Reaſons, imports, that if the States General refuſe to give Commiſſions for privateering, the States of the Province of Zealand will give Commiſſions in their own Name; that if the Privateers are depriv'd of the Rewards promis'd, they will beſtow them themſelves, and deduct it out of the Quota of the Subſidies which they are oblig'd to contribute towards the publick Expences: And they preſcribe a Term, that is to the End of this Month, for a poſitive and plain Declaration to be made on this ſubject.

Portſmouth, Dec. 30. Juſt now Sir Thomas Dilkes is under Sail with the Men of War and Merchant-Ships for Portugal; it's ſaid he will come to an Anchor again for an Hour or two, but reſolves to Sail in the Evening. The Dutch Vice-Admiral with the Dutch Ships with him are in St. Helens Road, to obſerve the Tranſports expected from Holland, in order to joyn them, and ſo proceed for Portugal. This Morning ſail'd hence for Plymouth the Reſtoration to get the Ships there ready againſt Admiral Dilks comes off that Place. The Governour of Barbadoes is expected here every Hour, the Ships upon his coming are ready to Sail for the Weſt-Indies.
